TOPIC OF INTEREST

Know more about Rajiv Gandhi Equity Savings Scheme (RGESS)

16. What is the maximum amount that I can invest in securities market? Can I bring the same in installments?

Ans. There is no maximum prescribed limit for your investments in securities market. However, RGESS benefits will be available only for investments in eligible securities upto ₹50,000. This investment can be made in installments. However, the benefits can be availed only for the investments made in the first financial year in which the benefit is claimed under Section 80CCG. Hence, if you are making investments in installments, make sure that you are making all your installments in a single financial year (which should be the year in which you open / designate your account for RGESS) as subsequent investments will not be counted towards RGESS.

17. Can I split my investment under RGESS over two financial years and claim deduction?

Ans. No. Only the investment during the first financial year can be booked as investment under RGESS to claim deduction.

18. Why the Scheme limit the benefits of the Scheme only to the first year?

Ans. The Scheme, as such, is designed for only the first time new investors. Since they can be 'new' only in the first year of entering the market, the benefits of the Scheme is limited to only one year for a particular beneficiary, i.e., the tax benefit can be availed of only to the extent of investments made in a single financial year in which the investor makes the first RGESS eligible investment after opting for the RGESS account.

The limitation of one year also arises from clause 2 of Section 80CCG as given below, which was inserted vide, Finance Act, 2012 in the Income Tax Act, 1961

80CCG (2) Where an assessee has claimed and allowed a deduction under this section for any assessment year in respect of any amount, he shall not be allowed any deduction under this section for any subsequent assessment year.

However, considering the financial constraints of the small retail investors, the flexibility to invest in installments in the first financial year is provided in the Scheme.

19. How much tax deduction will I be eligible for under RGESS?

Ans. You will be eligible to get tax deduction u/s 80CCG on 50% of the amount invested. Let us say, you invest ₹50,000 under RGESS, the amount eligible for tax deduction will be ₹25,000 from your taxable income. Let us say, you invest ₹40,000 under RGESS, the amount eligible for tax deduction will be ₹20,000 from your taxable income. This deduction is over and above ₹1 lakh limit specified under Section 80C. In other words, for those who are in the 10% income tax bracket, savings from tax liability for investments upto ₹50,000 under RGESS is ₹2500 (plus cess as applicable) and for those who are in the 20% income tax bracket, savings from tax liability is ₹5000/- (plus cess as applicable).

20. I have already claimed tax benefit under Section 80C. Can I avail of RGESS?

Ans. Yes you can. The tax deduction for RGESS is u/s 80CCG and it is over and above the ₹1 lakh limit specified under Section 80C. Further, it is not mandatory for citizens to exhaust the limit of ₹1 lakh specified under Section 80C to make investments under Section 80CCG for RGESS.
